Ph.D. in Earth System Science
University of California, Irvine
ess.uci.edu/grad | studentaffairs@ess.uci.edu | (949) 824-1604

Career paths to academia, research, and policy in a fully-funded Ph.D. program

RESEARCH OPPORTUNITIES & BENEFITS
Research opportunities available in a wide range of subject areas in atmospheric, oceanic, terrestrial, cryospheric, and human systems
Engage in field and laboratory work, observational analysis, theory and modeling
On-campus housing guaranteed for 3 years!

PRESTIGIOUS AWARDS
Over 30% of students receive fellowships, including the following national awards:
- NASA Earth and Space Science Fellowship
- NSF Graduate Research Fellowships Program
- National Defense Science & Engineering and Graduate Fellowship
Students receive a guaranteed annual stipend of 31K!

“UC Irvine set up the first Earth System Science Department in America
...Students and professors are in the field working to predict changing weather patterns, fire seasons and water tables—working to understand how shifting seasons affect global ecosystems”

- President Obama